Rhode Island Gathering Restriction Halts All Foreclosure Sales

Rhode Island, like many states, experienced a significant rise in COVID-19 infection rates at the end of 2020. In response, Governor Raimondo issued Executive Order 20-108 on December 17, 2020 which substantially reduced the size of outdoor gatherings to members of a single household through January 17, 2021. The Governor further extended this limitation to February 18, 2021. The Order can be found here:

This restriction effectively prevents scheduling of any foreclosure auction sales which are held at the property being foreclosed upon until after February 18, 2021. At that time, foreclosure sales may proceed if the restriction is either lifted or permitted gatherings are increased to 15 unrelated people.
